

THE MEMPHIS DAILY APPEAL.

BY MCCLANAHAN, TROUSDALE & DILL.

Daily Appeal.

EVENTS IN ITALY.—THE BATTLE OF MELANZANO.

MELANZANO.—(Half-way between Milan and Lodi,) Thursday, June 1.

With the arrival of the news of joy at the arrival of the two allied Sovereigns, this place, like the several towns which had occupied and fortified the camp, which had occupied and fortified that town with a consider-able force, was in a state of great alarm.

The situation of an army in such a position, and in such a state of alarm, can only be described as inconveniences.

THE BATTLE AS REPORTED AT VIENNA.

Correspondence of the Vienna Times.

MELANZANO.—(Half-way between Milan and Lodi,) Thursday, June 1.

With the arrival of the news of joy at the arrival of the two allied Sovereigns, this place, like the several towns which had occupied and fortified the camp, which had occupied and fortified that town with a consider-able force, was in a state of great alarm.

The situation of an army in such a position, and in such a state of alarm, can only be described as inconveniences.

THE BATTLE AS REPORTED AT VIENNA.

Correspondence of the Vienna Times.

MELANZANO.—(Half-way between Milan and Lodi,) Thursday, June 1.

The official telegram, an analysis of which was given to the postman by my letter of yesterday, was as follows:

VENICE, Thursday, June 10.—Now.

A part of the Imperial royal army, after having offered the most glorious (chivalrous) resistance to the attacks of the French, has been compelled to retreat from the Island of San Giulio, which is situated on the right bank of the Adda, near Melanzano.

The 5th division, under the command of General Bonaparte, had left the neighborhood of Milan only yesterday morning, and, while other troops were still in the direction of Lodi, while others were still in the direction of Pavia to load and accredit the baggage from Pavia to Lodi and across the Po.

General Foy, and L'Amiral [sic]—had left the neighborhood of Milan only yesterday morning, and, while other troops were still in the direction of Lodi, while others were still in the direction of Pavia to load and accredit the baggage from Pavia to Lodi and across the Po.

One look at the map will show you how important the position of Milan is to the Austrians in their retreat, for its possession by the allies gives them control of every road leading to the Lake of Lodi, and, therefore, to the Po.

Both sides, however, have lost many men.

GENERAL'S REPORT.

VIENNA, Thursday, June 1.

Yesterday morning official news was received concerning the battle of Melanzano.

General Bonaparte, had been attacked by the allies in the neighborhood of Melanzano, and, consequently, he has been compelled to retreat.

He has, however, been compelled to retreat.